

Abstract

This invention provided a mobile phone having a camera module (262) which is provided with a mirror (2020) that is pivotally or slidably mounted in relation to the camera so that flipping or sliding of the mirror relative to the camera (202) provides a range of images to the camera. Movement of the camera to take a plurality of images is thus unnecessary.